- Use an online tool to help you create an ATS resume

How to write an ATS resume in 3 steps

To create an ATS-optimized resume, you'll need the job description in front of you. Why? Because your resume should be tailored to each specific job, not reused for every application.

While it's tempting to submit the same resume across multiple job boards, you'll get better results by tailoring your resume to each role. It takes more time, but it's much more

It's important to keep your formatting simple. "There is no more sure-fire way to get your resume lost in an ATS than to clutter your resume with graphics, tables, and creative fonts," says professional resume writer Jazlyn Unbedacht. "You'll want to, but don't do it."

Follow these formatting tips to make sure your resume can be easily read by an ATS:

10 formatting tips for an ATS resume

- 1 Use simple, clear language. Avoid jargon or overly complicated wording.
- 2 Stick to traditional section headers like "Education" and "Work Experience."
- 3 Choose a standard font such as Times New Roman, Arial, or Calibri for optimal readability.

What is an applicant tracking system (ATS)?

An ATS is a software that helps companies sort and organize resumes. Almost all Fortune 500 companies—and many smaller ones—use an ATS to streamline hiring.

It's easy for job seekers to send out lots of resumes, but companies are flooded with resumes for every job posting. An ATS filters out less qualified applications and focus on the most qualified candidates.

In a competitive market with many jobs, your resume won't stand out unless you make it stand out. Hiring managers may never even see your resume.

specific keywords into the ATS search bar.

Log InSign Up

For example, if they're looking for a software engineer, they might type "software engineer" into the search bar. Or if they need someone with "graphic design" skills, they'll use that keyword.

Often, searches include multiple keywords. For instance, a hiring manager might search for "administrative assistant," "Microsoft Excel," and "PowerPoint." To show up in the search results, your resume needs to include all three of those keywords.

Read the job description carefully. This is where hiring managers find the keywords they use in their search.

What is a match rate?

Including keywords in your resume is a great start, but it's not always enough.

Many ATS systems automatically compare your entire resume to the job description, looking at your work experience, education, qualifications, and skills. Hiring managers can then sort candidates based on how well they "match" the job description.

To make things trickier, there are lots of different ATS platforms—some of the most popular is Jobscan and ResumeWorder. Each one scores candidates a little differently.

Can I run my resume through ATS for free?

The best way to run your resume through an ATS for free is to use a free online ATS resume scanner, such as the one offered by Jobscan. Simply paste in your resume along with a specific job description and Jobscan will provide you with a match rate.

Why do companies use ATS?

With the high volume of applications received through job boards, an ATS helps employers quickly identify the most qualified candidates. This saves time and is more efficient than manually reviewing every resume.

What is the most ATS-friendly resume format?

The most ATS-friendly resume format is the chronological format, which lists your work experience in reverse-chronological order. It's easy for ATS to scan because it uses standard headings like "Work Experience" and "Education," avoids complex designs or graphics, and focuses on simple formatting.
