To whom it may concern,

I recently heard about your company in a round-up of the best places to work in the Southwest, and I was immediately intrigued. Your appreciation for eco-friendly design and drive towards incorporating sustainable frameworks into office spaces dovetail exactly with my passions for efficient architecture, ergonomic safety, and the health of this planet.

As I read more about your company, I noticed you actively recruit in the health and safety specialties. With my background in environmental engineering and experience with green formats, I feel like I could bring a unique perspective to your team and would love an opportunity to work for your company.

Please contact me with any questions you may have about my background or references. I look forward to hearing from you, and thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Kwan Yun
